Alfa Laval wins SEK 200 million offshore pumping systems order from Statoil

Alfa Laval – a world leader in heat transfer, centrifugal separation and fluid handling – has won an order to supply its Framo pumping systems to several oil platforms in the North Sea. The order, booked in the Marine & Offshore Pumping Systems segment, has a value of approximately SEK 200 million and delivery is scheduled for 2016.

The order comprises the delivery of fire-water pumping systems to four oil platforms operated by Statoil in the Johan Sverdrup oil field in the North Sea.

“I am pleased to announce yet another large order from the offshore oil and gas industry for our Framo range,” says Lars Renström, President and CEO of the Alfa Laval Group. “These reliable and efficient products fit very well into our product portfolio.”

Did you know that... almost 40 years ago, in 1976, the first Framo pumping system was delivered to a platform in the North Sea?
