Alfa Laval wins SEK 50 million power order

Alfa Laval – a world leader in heat transfer, centrifugal separation and fluid handling – has won an order to supply various pieces of equipment to a power plant in the Middle East. The order is booked in the Energy & Process segment, has a value of approximately SEK 50 million and with delivery scheduled for 2017.

The order, placed by a Spanish contractor, comprises equipment such as separators, pump modules and a water treatment system, to be used for cleaning the fuel for the gas turbines in an integrated solar and combined-cycle (ISCC) plant.

“I am very pleased to announce this power order in the Middle East. Uptime is crucial for power generation and this order confirms our strong position as supplier of reliable equipment and solutions,” says Svante Karlsson, President of the Process Technology division in Alfa Laval.

Did you know that... in an ISCC plant electricity is generated from both solar energy and oil (or gas), which makes the energy production both effective and more sustainable?
